I would say: no. A perfectly designed device that is also copyrightable by itself cannot be copied. Any designed device can be copied by someone, but copying the thing itself is a violation of the person's right to make copies of it. It might be a good idea for individuals to have an educational distinction between the copyrightable aspects and the non-copyrightable aspects of created works. Pensioner Kim Smith spent nearly 30 years of his life in the shadow of the infamous IRA in the Mountjoy Prison in Dublin. And he is amazed that his ordeal could end this way. Last month, he was paroled and today he is set to return home to his family. He was only 16 years old when he was arrested on his way home from school in 1973 and put in Mountjoy prison. He was arrested for a minor offence and was in the cell next to convicted IRA member Jackie Dillon. He says that the relationship between the two changed his life forever. A mother's heart "This man spent most of his time trying to recruit me into the IRA and I was 16 years old, I was there in prison, the fella was there in prison. It changed my life and it made me want to be an anti-communist and that was my life. "He was a really good fella and he was my best friend in the whole world and I can't think of a time when I didn't
